Communities of Practice (Lave and Wenger) Summary:
Etienne Wenger summarizes Communities of Practice (CoP) as “ groups of people who share a concern or a passion for something they do and learn how to do it better as they interact regularly. ” . This learning that takes place is not necessarily intentional.

A community of practice is a group of people who "share a concern or a passion for something they do and learn how to do it better as they interact regularly". The concept was first proposed by cognitive anthropologist Jean Lave and educational theorist Etienne Wenger in their 1991 book Situated Learning. Wenger then significantly expanded on the concept in his 1998 book Communities of Practice. A CoP can evolve naturally because of the members' common interest in a particular domain or area, or

To give a social account of learning, the theory explores in a systematic way the intersection of issues of community, social practice, meaning, and identity. The result is a broad framework for thinking about learning as a process of social participation.

Communities of Practice by Etienne Wenger community of practice was coined to refer to the community that acts as a living curriculum for the apprentice. Once the concept was articulated, we started to see these communities everywhere, even when no formal apprenticeship system existed. And of course, learning in a community of practice is not
