To write a closing argument, look back at your opening statement. In a trial, an opening statement is a lawyer's first chance to outline the facts of a case. Good opening statements are limited to just the introductory facts and should not attempt to sway the jury or audience with persuasive language. Instead, good opening statements outline what is to come in the rest of the trial and tell the jury what to expect.

How to Write a Good Closing Argument | The Classroom

There's no hard and fast rule for how long your conclusion should be, but for many high school and college essays, a good rule of thumb is that your conclusion should be anywhere from 5 to 7 sentences long. Any less, and you probably haven't summarized your points enough; any more, and you're probably rambling on a bit too much. 4
