Policing is an information-led activity, and information assurance (IA) is fundamental to how the police service manages many of the challenges faced in policing today. It is vital for maintaining public confidence and for the efficient, effective, safe and secure conduct of operations and services. Without robust IA governance and processes, there is a significant risk of compromise, potentially leading to the facilitation of crime, public safety issues, hindrance to investigations ...

The flip side of Information Assurance is Information Warfare (IW). In fact, one can think of the offensive part of IW as "information operations," and the defensive part as information assurance. Type I involves managing an opponent's perception through deception and psychological operations. In military circles, this is called Truth Projection.
