Law firm mergers are not a business strategy. They are just one route you can take to gain a competitive advantage. A merger is not a cure-all that will resolve all your firm's problems. However, it can create a launchpad for the new entity to grow competitively in a way that would not have been possible beforehand.

Law firm mergers - the benefits and the drawbacks ...

As Hanh notes, the most successful law firm mergers are those that combine two firms that have a shared vision and culture. So over and above the practical details and logistics of a law firm union - including, but not limited to, office location, IT integration, salary integration, redundancies - the firms need to ensure that they are on the same page in terms of some less quantifiable elements.
