For all who have suffered great loss of heart, home, health or family; true home and genuine lasting love can be found. When a horrific battle rips through Gettysburg, the farm of Union widow Liberty Holloway is disguised into a Confederate field hospital, bringing her face to face with unspeakable suffering—and a Confederate scout who awakens her long-dormant heart. But when the scout doesn ' t die, she discovers he isn ' t who he claims to be. While Liberty ' s future crumbles as her home is destroyed, the past comes rushing back to Bella, a former slave and Liberty ' s hired help, when she finds herself surrounded by Southern soldiers, one of whom knows the secret that would place Liberty in danger if revealed. In the wake of shattered homes and bodies, Liberty and Bella struggle to pick up the pieces the battle has left behind. Will Liberty be defined by the tragedy in her life, or will she find a way to triumph over it? Inspired by first-person accounts, Widow of Gettysburg is second book in the Heroines Behind the Lines series. These books do not need to be read in succession. For more information about the series, visit www.heroinesbehindthelines.com.

Charles Riggs, director of Counseling and Follow-Up for the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association for 38 years, shares in this booklet how God has met him day by day and strengthened his life through the daily Quiet Time.

Jack Butler's jujitsu for Christ—originally published in 1986—follows the adventures of Roger Wing, a white born-again Christian and karate instructor who opens a martial arts studio in downtown Union, Mississippi, during the tensest years of the Civil Rights era. Ambivalent about his religion and his region, he befriends the Gandys, an African-American family—parents A. L. and Shower Mae, teenaged son T. J., daughter Ekanor Roosevelt, and youngest son Marcus—who has moved to Jackson from the Delta in hopes of greater opportunity for their children. As the political heat rises, Roger and the Gandys find their lives intersecting in unexpected ways. Their often-hilarious interactions are told against the backdrop of Mississippi's racial trauma—Governor Ross Barnett's "I Love Mississippi" speech at the 1962 Ole Miss-Kentucky football game in Jackson; the riots at the University of Mississippi over James Meredith's admission; the fieldwork of Medgar Evers; the NAACP, and various activist organizations; and the lingering aura of Emmett Till's lynching. Drawing not only on William Faulkner's gothic-modernist Yoknapatawpha County but also on Edgar Rice Burrough's high-adventure Martian pulp, Jujitsu for Christ powerfully illuminates vexed questions of racial identity and American history, revealing complexities and subtleties too often overlooked. It is a remarkable novel about the civil rights era, and how our memories of that era continue to shape our political landscape and to resonate in contemporary conversations about southern identity. But, mostly, it's very funny, in a mode that's experimental, playful, sexy, and disturbing all at once. Butler offers a new foreword to the novel. Brannon Costello, a scholar of contemporary southern literature and fan of Butler's work, writes an afterword that situates the novel in its historical context and in the southern literary canon.

In EcoMind, Frances Moore Lapp Nā giant of the environmental movement N confronts accepted wisdom of environmentalism. Drawing on the latest research from anthropology to neuroscience and her own field experience, she argues that the biggest challenge to human survival isn Ōt our fossil fuel dependency, melting glaciers, or other calamities. Rather, it Ōs our faulty way of thinking about these environmental crises that robs us of power. Lapp dismantles seven common Ōthought traps Ō N from limits to growth to the failings of democracy N that belie what we now know about nature, including our own, and offers contrasting Ōthought leaps Ō that reveal our hidden power. Like her Diet for a Small Planet classic, EcoMind is challenging, controversial and empowering.
